50 kilowatt peak capacity cap for city apartment complexes despite a higher sanctioned electrical load hurting rooftop solar infra

Centre has capped panel capacity at 500 KWp for SRTPV

“Officials informed us capacity can be increased to 150 KWp if we switch to HT supply with a meter cubicle...This is not feasible — Satish Mallya, president, apartment RWA

The Bangalore Electricity Supply Company Limited (BESCOM) has a target of generating 1,000 megawatts (MW) of energy from rooftop solar panels by 2022.

To date, it has barely reached 18% of the target. As per the official data, only 184 MW of grid-connected Solar Rooftop PhotoVoltaic (SRTPV) plants have been installed by the nodal agency in Karnataka.

According to users in the city, BESCOM has not been able to tap the potential of rooftop solar due to various policy-related hurdles. The biggest, they alleged, is the cap of 50 kilowatt peak (KWp) capacity for apartment complexes, despite a higher sanctioned electrical load.

For instance, an apartment complex in Yelahanka has a sanctioned electrical load of 65 KWp. However, when residents applied for a 65 KWp SRTPV plant, the application was rejected.

“While our energy requirement was 90 KWp, we brought it down to 65 KWp with various energy-saving measures. We then set the goal of net-zero electricity bills by moving to solar energy. While our requirement was 65 KWp, BESCOM sanctioned only 50 KWp for SRTPV. Our request for an off-grid plant to meet the rest of the 15 KWp requirement was also rejected,” said Satish Mallya, president of the apartment complex.

Recently, Bangalore Apartment Federation (BAF), representing over one thousand apartment complexes across the city, reached out to BESCOM with the request to allow apartments to install rooftop solar plants of above 50 KWp capacity.

According to a BAF member, the majority of the apartments are small or medium-sized with enough space to install solar panels. Moreover, the Ministry of New and Renewable Energy

Covid in newborns

City hospitals seeing a surge in covid among just-borns

As researchers and doctors explore in detail how covid is affecting children, there is a curious development in Bengaluru: city’s paediatricians are seeing a surge in covid among just-born babies. Many hospitals are reporting cases of Multisystem Inflammatory Syndrome in Neonates or newborns (MIS-N).

Dr Prathap Chandra, consultant lead paediatrician and neonatologist, at Motherhood Hospital, Indiranagar, said, “We have treated 14 MIS-N cases so far. Majority of them are out-born babies and transferred to our unit for advanced care. The symptoms and signs vary in every infant and mimic infection. Around the first week of life, MIS-N typically manifests itself as an acute incident. When there is a suspicion of MIS-N, we perform specific covid antibodies tests along with other blood tests that indicate inflammation.”

Multisystem Inflammatory Syndrome is a post-covid complication that occurs due to an aberration in the immune system where in the immune system attacks the body resulting in widespread inflammation that can affect different organs.

Children under the age of 18 are more commonly affected, said Dr Chandrika Bhat, consultant, pediatric rheumatology, at Rainbow Children’s Hospital, Marathahalli: “When it occurs in babies under the age of one month it is called MIS-N. It is seen following exposure to covid or due to passage

Bannerghatta National Park's passive adoption programme for animals is a hit among schools with hundreds of children pitching in to care for them financially

c-garima.prasher@timesgroup.com
TWEETS @BangaloreMIRROR

An Indian grey wolf, an African grey parrot, a tiger, a porcupine and an elephant at Bannerghatta Biological Park are the darlings of the many young minds who come to visit them. These animals -- although they may not know it -- get a tad more love and care than the rest as they have been passively adopted by hundreds of school children as part of the BBP's animal adoption (passive) programme that was launched two years ago. So far, five animals at the zoo have been passively adopted, christened, and taken care of financially by four city-based schools.

The passive adoption programme was launched by BBP after the zoo faced a financial crunch due to a dip in revenue from lockdowns. In passive adoption, the patron pays a lump sum amount and the officials use that amount to care for the animal.

"We have passively adopted an eight-year-old tiger and have named him Mithun. I love animals and I am looking forward to seeing Mithun when we visit the park next time. It gives me a feeling that I am responsible for him," said Tvisha Vibhu Malige, a student of Orchid International School in BTM Layout. The school passively adopted Mithun only a week ago.

According to the school, the idea behind adopting the tiger was to send out a message about protecting wildlife and their habitats. Under the initiative, 20 students from the school formed a council to sensitise their peers and raised the money required for adopting Mithun.

"The tiger was a natural choice as it is our national animal. Moreover, the number of tigers in the wild is dwindling and we wanted to play our part by sensitising the students," said Manjula B, Principal, Orchids - The International School, BTM Layout.

While students from Orchid are fostering Mithun, Ekya School children have taken an Indian grey wolf and an African grey parrot as their own. They did this by raising the money required for passive adoption through various crowdfunding and contributions.

"We passively adopted these two animals in March this year. We went for the adoption to voice our support for biodiversity conservation and instil compassion for animals among the students," said Prasidh Pradeep, a student of Ekya School, BTM Layout.

The animals were passively adopted under the school's Service-Learning Programme where the students are allowed to be involved in activities beyond their academics.

"The adoption will create a sense of participation among the children thereby creating a bond with these animals. It will allow students to take ownership of the animals' well-being and experience the joy of spending time with them. Besides, it will also provide a source of revenue for better zoo management and better up-keep of animals," said Asha Doris, head of school, Ekya School.

Raintree School in Jayanagar decided to go with an Indian Crested Porcupine and named him Herbert.

"The students adoringly called him 'Herby'. We passively adopted him in 2020. Since physical classes were not on, the school management went on with the process on behalf of the students.

"We decided to passively adopt a porcupine as we felt not many people would choose them due to their spiky appearance. We took care of Herby for one year and we are looking to passively adopt a few more animals this year so students can experience the process first-hand," said Jayant Gauri, founder, Raintree School.

According to BBP officials, an elephant has been adopted by GJR School, another city-based school. All the funds cover food, maintenance and veterinary health care expenses of the animals.

The zoo has multiple adoption plans for those who want to adopt the animals. They can be passively adopted under 'diamond class', 'gold class', 'silver class' and 'bronze class'.

The adoption rate of animals under 'diamond class' varies between Rs three lakh and Rs 75,000 per year; the rate of animals adoption under 'gold class' varies between Rs 50,000 and Rs 20,000 per annum; the rate of animals' adoption under 'silver class' varies between Rs 15,000 and Rs 10,000, and the rate of animals adoption under 'bronze class' varies between Rs 5,000 and Rs 1,000 per year.

Folks, it's time to recycle your e-waste!

Bengaluru holds the rank of being the third largest city that produces of e-waste in the country. There are concerns over safe disposal of e-waste as there is a surge in e-waste across households. To create awareness on the issue, Vijay Karnataka and Bangalore Mirror had jointly organised a unique awareness programme in the city on Saturday. This programme will be held in a phased manner across Bengaluru.

Many participants held placards and raised slogans on creating awareness to reduce e-waste

Launching this programme, Minister for Cooperation ST Somashekar lauded the efforts of VK and BM in this special drive. The launch was coincided with a bike rally as well as a cultural jatha. During the jatha, many participants held placards and raised slogans on creating awareness to plug e-waste.

The programme also focussed on how there is a need to recycle e-waste as it was the need of the hour. The e-waste bins were also in the apartments and the residents were encouraged to segregate e-waste and dump them. Experts also suggested that if e-waste was not disposed of properly, it could have a negative effect on the environment.

This campaign was organised in partnership with BBMP, BMRCL, KSPCB, Changer Makers of Kanakapura Road, Sogo Synergy E-Waste Management, and Recycling Services, and other residents' welfare organisations.

Nursery owners pray for sunshine in pouring rain

Heavy rain has been destroying plants and sinking flower businesses

Shreyashi Mukherjee
c-shreyashi.m@timesgroup.com
TWEETS @BangaloreMIRROR

Nurseries are facing a hard time because of heavy rains that have been lashing the city regularly.

People owning nurseries say that because of excess water, their plants, especially outdoor ones, are getting damaged.

Gopalkrishna Hegde, owner of Garden Care Nursery, said, "Plants like Jasmine and its varieties such as Hibiscus and Rose are some of the plants that have gotten damaged. Our shop has been widely affected. For the flowering plants, the petals fall off because of the heavy rains, so there will not be flowers even though they are of flowering variety. Due to all of this a lot of the plants are getting wasted."

Many nursery owners are still struggling because of the losses they incurred in the months of the pandemic. The rains are only adding to their frustration.

"We are not seeing any customers at all and there is wastage too. The leaves fall down and we have to reject those plants

– Govinda, nursery owner

After incurring losses because of the pandemic, nursery owners now have to deal with heavy rains

Shiv Kumar, who runs Shiva Nursery, said, "Our business is facing a lot of losses. The weather is also not sunny, and because of that, we are not able to grow the flowers properly. Whatever is there is getting wasted because their roots are getting spoiled by excess water. We have to spend money to grow these plants and take care of them, but we are not able to gain from it."

Nursery owners also say that the rain is contributing to fewer customers visiting their shops. They are not making enough sales because of this, which is also leading to a problem of storing these plants.

Govinda, owner of Govindappa Garden, said, We are not seeing any customers at all and there is a lot of wastage as well. The leaves fall down and we have to reject those plants."

The rains have also hit online flower businesses.

Gerogie Jacob, proprietor of Mary's Garden, a nursery that runs its business online, said, "We had to stop our deliveries for some days because of the rain. We are waiting for the weather to become fine so that we can start delivering again. We are obviously facing a lot of losses due to this. Delivering during the rain was very problematic and some of the plants were also getting damaged."

Next big thing: All eyes on BBMP as ward-wise reservations call looms

The BBMP might have redrawn the wards, but the big challenge awaiting them is to announce the reservation quota.

According to the Supreme Court's directive, the reservation quota is to be announced by July 22. Once announced, it has to invite objections from the residents as well, which can take up to a few weeks following the announcement.

What is left now is a waiting game to see whether the Palike will be able to meet the apex court's directive.

Revision of ward boundaries

Based on received objections, boundaries of 28 wards have been slightly changed. The wards which have seen changes in boundaries since the draft notification was announced

Dissent continues

Not everyone is still happy with the latest notification. Many opposition leaders have alleged that there were wide discrepancies in boundary lines of at least 10 wards.

The numbers of many wards have also been changed since the draft notification. The Yelachenahalli ward has been completely revised, while Kanaka Nagar jurisdiction has been brought under Yelachenahalli and Yelachenahalli limits under Konanakunte.

Kalyan Nagar ward has been brought under Chandra Layout.

Businessman gets extortion calls, files complaint with cops

East Africa-based businessman says goon already extorted Rs 1 lakh from him

Bellie.Thomas
TWEETS @Bellie_Mirror

A 58-year-old businessman who runs his borewell business in Somalia, East Africa has filed a complaint with the North Division city police. He claims to be harassed by a goon who is claiming to be a local goon in Mangaluru.

The goon is trying to extort money from him whenever he demands it. The victim, Asif Ali Turabi, a resident of Benson Town, had started his borewell business in a town named Hargeisa in Somalia, East Africa, two years ago. He visited India frequently. Recently, another businessman named Nazir approached him and asked if he could start some business in Somalia which would also benefit his borewell business. Turabi gave him the idea of starting a water pipes showroom in the same city.

Nazir started a water pipe showroom in Hargeisa. Soon after Nazir started his showroom in Somalia, it started raining intermittently in East Africa, and the business was down. Both their businesses did not fare well due to rains. "I took a break for the Eid festival and came to India and was busy with one of my properties in Arasikere which is under litigation," Turabi told Bangalore Mirror. Since he has come to Bengaluru, he has been receiving calls from a person named Hemanth Shetty who claimed to be a local goon in Mangaluru. Since Nazir also belongs to Mangaluru, Hemanth claimed to be his close friend and threatened Turabi stating Nazir had incurred losses in his business after listening to his idea and followed it in Somalia. Hemanth threatened Turabi stating that he knew other businessmen in Somalia and he could bring him down at any point in time.

Hemanth then he threatened to come in front of his house when his family was alone at home and create a ruckus.

Turabi decided to pay him some money and after discussing it with his family members. He paid Hemanth Shetty Rs 1 lakh. Soon after getting the money, Hemanth again started harassing Turabi time and again stating that his friend Nazir had incurred crores of rupees loss Turabi had to pay up whenever he demanded money and kept calling him frequently demanding more money.

"When I called Nazir on his phone, he never picks up my call and is incommunicado," Turabi told Bangalore Mirror. When the harassment from Hemanth became unbearable, he approached the Deputy Commissioner of Police, North Division and narrated his ordeal.

Based on the DCP's direction, the JC Nagar police have registered a non-cognizable report and have summoned the accused to obtain his statement. "If the allegations by Turabi are found cognizable after obtaining a statement from the accused party, then a case will be registered and the law will take its course," said a senior police officer.

SC to hear pleas of K'taka ADGP, against 'adverse' remarks by HC

The Supreme Court is scheduled to hear on July 18 pleas of Karnataka ADGP Seemanth Kumar Singh and IAS officer J Manjunath against expunction of "adverse" remarks of High Court judge HP Sandesh made during the hearing of a bribery case and stay of the proceedings. A bench of Chief Justice NV Ramana, Krishna Murari and Hima Kohli is scheduled to hear the pleas on Monday. On July 12, the top court had asked the HC judge to defer the hearing in the matter for three days. Justice Sandesh had made some "adverse" remarks against the Anti-Corruption Bureau and its ADGP Seemanth Kumar Singh while taking up a bail plea in the bribery case. — PTI

You are now free to take photos and videos of government offices

Facing flak from various quarters, the State Government withdrew its controversial order of banning photography and videography in government offices. The criticism was such that the government was forced to issue a rejoinder at midnight.

On Friday, the State government issued the ban orders after the State Government Employees Association submitted a petition for the ban.

Sources said that earlier the decision was taken after the association had alleged before the government that some employees were being harassed by certain people by shooting photos and videos inside government premises. However, the circular was criticised as it was hampering transparency. — BMB

The new guardians of Bengaluru's roads

BBMP Chief Commissioner Tushar Giri Nath on Saturday instructed officials to deploy marshals to penalise those who dig roads without permission. This came after many residents complained of workers digging roads to lay cable lines without the necessary permission.

Nath recently visited Mahadevapura's zonal office and received complaints from the public. Many residents complained that roads are dug up for installing cables and workers leave without repairing them. As a result, this creates lots of problems for pedestrians and commuters.

The Chief Commissioner said that no road must be dug for laying cabled and permission is given for horizontal directional digging only. Those who flout the rules will face action by the marshals. If found illegal, cables will be confiscated and the workers will be fined. Many residents have also complained that many trees were dangerously bent or grown in the area and getting permission to cut them takes lots of time, so the residents requested to clear them. He instructed officials to clear the trees without any delay.

It's a common complaint that workers dig roads to lay cables but do not repair them afterwards (file)

If a road is dug without taking necessary permission, workers will be levied a fine by the marshals

Fixes and repairs

Mahadevapura residents also requested to repair the connecting line of Seetharampalya Lake, as the water was not flowing into it. The Chief Commissioner asked the officials to repair it immediately.

The residents also requested officials to clear the encroachment of rajakaluve (stormwater drains) near Gopalan School in Garudachar Palya. He instructed officials to conduct a survey, and if the encroachment was found, they must immediately clear it. He also instructed officials to clear the illegal sheds built in the lake buffer zone. Officials were also directed to come up with a list of illegal encroachments of Rajakaluve buffer zones and clear them every Saturday.

Residents also broached the issue of an odour emanating from Vengaiah Lake and officials were asked to stop the sewage from flowing into the lake.

Nath also asked officials to install new 77 garbage kiosks on the roadside to avoid people from littering, particularly in Ramamurthy Nagar.

Officials were asked to upload the timings of the auto-tipper garbage collection on the website by making a micro-plan.

DID YOU KNOW?

The history of Devanahalli fort dates back to the 15th century, when a family of fleeing refugees from Conjeevaram (modern-day Kanchi), camped near the foot of Ramaswami betta, east of Nandi Hills. Their leader Rana Baire Gowda was apparently directed in a dream to set up a settlement in this region. He and his Morasu Wokkalu family settled in a small village, Ahuti, which was later known as Avati. His son Malla Baire Gowda founded Devanahalli, Chikka-ballapura and Dodda-ballapura. Kempegowda, the founder of Bangalore city is also from Morasu Wokkalu family. The fort is spread over an area of 20 acres. A spacious battlement is provided towards the inner side of the fortification. The fort has entrances decorated with cut plasterwork at the east and west. (Wikipedia)

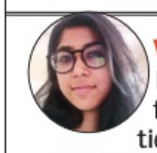
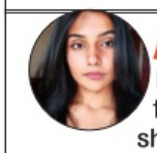
where Bengalureans speak their mind

How can authorities & citizens make public spaces more accessible to pets?

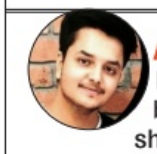


Vertika Saxena, BM Reader
Public spaces can be made pet-friendly with the help of authorities and their initiatives, by applying strict safety rules. Authorities can create reserved areas that are only for pets and their owners, this would provide pets some space to move freely and without any fear in the public area.

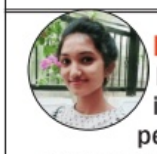
Muskaan Bali, Student / Actor
I don't feel there should be so many restrictions on bringing dogs to the parks. Instead encourage pet owners to clean up after their pets, so pets are not viewed with negativity in the parks.



Anoushka Shekhar, Student
Making public spaces more pet-friendly by having dog parks, pet shelters for abandoned animals and allowing pets to come into restaurants would help make public spaces more enjoyable for pets.



Adwitiya Srivastava, Student
Making spaces pet-friendly can be done through events like pet shows and parties, or pet-friendly spaces like parks and gardens.
These can be promoted through local news coverage and word-of-mouth.



Parvathy R, Dancer
I think establishing certain zones in parks, as "pet zones" will allow pet lovers and non-pet lovers to enjoy the beauty of the parks together.

Shantanu Sharma, BM Reader
Maybe dog leashes could be made compulsory in all parks, so that those afraid of dogs and such pets, feel more at ease.

Sickly sweet

To be (positive) or not to be, is the question. We talk to 'victims' and healers of toxic positivity to understand what this phenomenon is

| Tina Freese

TWEETS @BangaloreMirror

It's early morning and you just woke up to the sound of a stray dog barking. It is not a good day, your heart feels heavy. You make yourself a warm cup of tea or coffee and sit on your bed ready to do some mindless scrolling. There it is, the first thing that pops up on your feed is one person standing in front of an unnecessarily cheerful-looking background saying, "Go get this day, seize the opportunity. It is a new day."

As someone wise once said, excess of anything is bad. Too much positivity too can be exhausting. Phrases like "go get it", "hustle hard" and "you can do it" can pump some up but at the same time can make people feel inadequate and depressed.

Prantika Ghosh, 22, who has been using social media for several years says that such posts invalidate her emotions. She tries to keep away from it as much as possible. She said, "It is exhausting and irritating. Sometimes I just open Instagram and see posts with positivity quotes and all, it just triggers me. They in a way invalidate my feelings, if I am feeling low, such posts make me feel like what I am feeling is wrong. It is not possible to be happy all the time, right. I try to keep away from social media if I am feeling really low."

Twenty-three-year-old Supriya Mehta feels that social media has become a toxic place especially if you're feeling low. "None of it is real, let me tell you. All of us have different lives and different sets of problems. I don't want someone from a rich background coming in and telling me 'life is good' because it is not the same for me and you. Social media sets this bar really high for people and then it makes me feel what am I even doing with my life. To be honest, I want someone to say 'hey what you're feeling is fine, and I sometimes feel this way too'."

"One or two posts is fine, but then at some point, it becomes irritating. Like this Instagrammer comes on screen, they have a good life maybe but then it is not the same for me. It is like a billionaire saying money doesn't matter. Sure it may not matter to you. Such things just make me feel like my sadness is not valid, like I am committing a crime by being sad," said 22-year-old Vinaya K, a corporate employee.

Are you positive or toxic positive?

So when does positivity turn toxic? In simple terms, it is simply when in order to be positive people start turning a blind eye to their emotions. They stop processing difficult emotions like trauma and grief to be positive.

Experts believe that positivity turns toxic when a person believes in the idea that no matter what happens in life, we need to remain happy, and positive or look at the "silver lining" even during the most difficult of experiences. Sumithra Sridhar, a consulting psychologist, said, "This can be toxic, as it doesn't allow for a person to express deep emotions such as sadness, grief, loss and fear in an authentic manner. Have you heard the phrase "Don't laugh too much, you'll cry later"? It is one of the biggest examples of toxic positivity, as it means we need to fear our emotions like sadness and make us want to avoid them, whereas, in reality, all our emotions need to be felt, expressed and worked on."

"Toxic positivity also doesn't allow a person to grow/evolve as it belittles failure. Instead, it begins to make them feel like 'we have to be okay, no matter what' which doesn't allow for new life learnings
–Sumithra Sridhar, psychologist

Long-term hazards

Being positive all the time can have long-term mental health hazards. "Toxic positivity also doesn't allow a person to grow/evolve as it belittles failure. Instead, it begins to make them feel like 'we have to be okay, no matter what' which doesn't allow for new life experiences/learnings. It takes a toll on a person's authenticity and makes them question the experience, hence leading to some form of self-gaslighting. It can also affect a person's ability to connect or empathise with other people's experiences of loss and grief," said Sridhar.

Feel whatever you feel

Sometimes when a tragedy hits, it is easier to shut down and ignore those emotions completely. Positivity can be a temporary coping mechanism but it might backfire, as grief is cyclical and is bound to come back, as an emotion, explained Sridhar.

So what's the way out, if there is any.

"Allow yourself to tell yourself that what you are feeling is real and what you are feeling is valid. All your emotions are valid, all your emotions are allowed to be felt and all your emotions are allowed to be expressed in a healthy manner," said she.

Seeking help is good but one needs to be careful where to look. "A very disheartening aspect of social media that we as therapists try our best to educate people about, but it's never enough. It's absolutely dangerous and unethical to provide advice to people about what they should do with their lives. If people are met with unqualified professional advice, it could make them lose hope in the idea of therapy or even worse, they could begin to perceive therapy as a "fake" or a "wrong" place," said Sridhar.

So next time you see a person saying that life is all rainbows and sunshine, RUN!

Books for all, from students

Engineering students collect old textbooks to give to needy

Students of the BMS College of Engineering have undertaken an initiative to collect old academic books and distribute them to the needy.

Over the course of weeks, the students conducted a book collection drive and collected PUC textbooks, NCERT textbooks, CET, NEET, JEE reference books, and others. From all the collection centres, the students were able to collect more than 3,000 books.

"When I was studying in PU, I received books from other people. Instead of throwing away books, I wanted to do the same for the current PUC students as well. We started this book collection drive to continue the practice of reuse of books," said Dhruv NK, Insitute Social Responsibility Cell, BMS College of Engineering.

The students gathered around CET and COMEDK exam centres to create awareness about the drive. The group continued to collect books phase-wise for over a month and many exams were still in progress. To ease the collection and drop process, volunteers from local areas would collect the books and bring them to the common collection centre.

The books were then segregated and packed to be shipped off to beneficiary PU colleges. Around 2,100 books were shipped to a government PU college in Kolar (Boys and Girls); around 100 were distributed to children of security staff, and support staff in BMS College. The remaining will also be distributed in a phased manner.

The Government PU College for Boys in Kolar has decided to start a book bank system to ensure the accountability and safety of books. "The entire second PU students (51) have been divided into groups of eight, that consists of all types of students. Each group has been given all reference books on only one subject. They shall have 15 days. After this, the leader of each group exchanges this with the other group. The same cycle shall repeat every 15 days. Every book taken by any student group will be recorded, and group leaders will have to keep updating this to the principal regularly," added Dhruv.

Rooftop solar in policy fix

has capped the panel capacity at 500 KWp for SRTPV. "We are requesting the officials to increase the sanctioned load of the solar plant to 150 KWp. While MNRE has allowed the panel capacity of 500 KWp, BESCOM is still not sanctioning more than 50 KWp to the apartments despite a higher sanctioned electrical load. While we are all willing to make the shift, BESCOM's policy is holding us back," said the member.

Yet another apartment complex in Electronics City, with a sanctioned electrical load and requirement of 180 KWp, is in the process of installing solar panels of 50 KWp.

"While we have enough space to install 180 KWp SRTPV capacity, we got approval for 50 KWp only. Our current monthly electricity bill is Rs 3 lakh. Although now we will be able to save Rs 1 lakh per month on electricity, we could have hit net zero. We have space for more than the sanctioned electrical load of 180 KWp," said Varghese, a resident of Ajmera Infinity.

SRTPV users said the size of the SRTPV plants sanctioned by the electricity distribution company is restricted based on rules that are not technically sound.

"We have three towers in our complex with a single meter for common area facilities. As per BESCOM's rule, solar panels can be installed only on buildings with electric meters. So, we could put up the panel only on one tower, which does not come to 50 KWp as there was a space constraint. Although the rest of the two towers have enough space for more panels, we were not permitted to do so," said Kazi Zamam, a resident of an apartment complex in Nagavara.

However, as per BESCOM, the upper limit for SRTPV for apartments is 2,000 KWp, provided some technical requirements are met. Officials said the applications are being processed as per the guidelines chalked out by the Central Electricity Authority (CEA).

"The sanctioned load for SRTPV for apartments is capped at 2,000 KWp by BESCOM. However, a transformer is required to install rooftop panels with a capacity of more than 50 KWp. If the transformer is already present, the apartments need to install meter cubicles. Most of these apartments do not want to invest in these measures but want to increase their plant capacity. We cannot go against the rules set by CEA," said a BESCOM official.

Residents miffed

Residents alleged that they have been asked by BESCOM to approach the Karnataka Electricity Regulatory Commission (KERC) with their appeal to increase the sanctioned load to 150 KWp.

They said installing transformers and meter cubicles is not just a costly affair, but also technically an absurd idea.

"All the apartments in the city have LT supply only. The officials have also informed us that the solar plant capacity can be increased to 150 KWp if we switch to HT supply with a meter cubicle. This suggestion is neither technically sound, nor feasible. A lot of investment will be required for HT supply. Moreover, the tariff will surge as well," said Mallya.

Residents said the objective of the rooftop solar scheme should be to minimise the hurdles and maximize the customer base. The idea is to reduce dependence on fossil fuels and thermal power by shifting to renewable energy that is sustainable and environment-friendly.

According to the residents, however, BESCOM's policies are achieving just the opposite.

Wine producer Sula Vineyards files IPO papers with Sebi

Leading wine producer Sula Vineyards has filed preliminary papers with capital markets regulator Sebi to raise funds through an initial public offering (IPO).

The public issue will be entirely an offer for sale (OFS) aggregating to 25,546,186 equity shares by the promoter, investors and other shareholders, according to the draft red herring prospectus (DRHP) filed with Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi).

Promoter, founder and CEO Rajeev Samant, and investors such as Cofintra, Haystack Investments Limited, Saama Capital III, Ltd, SWIP Holdings Limited, Verlinvest S.A and Verlinvest France SA Sula Vineyards are selling their stakes through the OFS route. Sula Vineyards has been recognized as the market leader across wine variants, including red, white and sparkling wines. The company distributes wines under a bouquet of popular brands such as Sula, its flagship brand, besides other popular brands like RASA, Dindori, The Source, Satori, Madera & Dia. Currently, it produces 56 different labels of wines across 13 distinct brands at its four owned and two leased production facilities located in Maharashtra and Karnataka. The Nashik-based wine maker is one of the fastest growing alcoholic beverage companies in India as of March 31, 2021, according to Technopak report as mentioned in the DRHP. On the basis of total revenue from operations, it has gained market share from 33% in fiscal 2009 in 100% grapes wine category to 52% in value in fiscal 2020 and further increased to 52.6% in fiscal 2021.

As tech park gets ready, software boom in Mysuru

There is a big buzz around the 'Software Technology Park of India' in Mysuru before its inauguration. More than 15 companies have already come forward to set up their offices here.

Start-up founders can start their companies here and they would also get support and mentorship from the government. This SPTI will have its own data centre and it is said that the Internet will be available to companies at an affordable cost.

Earlier, the work had slowed down due to many reasons, but now the work is very much on track so the centre will be inaugurated by Dasara. It is spread over 2.10 acres of land and building area is 40,000 sq ft.

The STPI centre is built by the Central Government's Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology at the cost of Rs.24 crore in the Hebbalu Industrial area. It will be housed in a three-storey building including ground floor and will have 200 workstations. This facility includes a conference hall, meeting hall, discussion room, and other facilities to help software professionals. As of now, there are operational STPIs in Bengaluru, Bhubaneshwar, Pune. In 1991, the Central Government started STPIs to encourage software exports. In India, there are 62 STPI centres. Former prime minister Atal Bihari Vajapayee started STPI centre in Mysuru in 1998.

Mysuru is growing very fast and is getting closer to IT city Bengaluru. Once the 10-lane road work is completed, travel between the two cities will also become easier. The three-hour journey will be slashed to just an hour-and-a-half. Mysuru is also leading in software exports. So, if the STPI centre gets into action soon, investment will increase in Mysuru.

MP Pratap Simha said, "The work in the STPI building is completed. All the work will be completed by September. This will encourage start-ups to venture out to Mysuru."

Covid in just-borns latest concern of covid antibodies through the placenta from mother to baby. Symptoms range from difficulty in breathing, refusal to feed, decrease in activity, low blood pressure and eventually shock.

Fever may not always be seen in neonates. However children almost always have fever along with other symptoms such as rash/ red eyes, lips, loose stools, vomiting and can progress to low blood pressure when the inflammation affects the heart."

Spike in MIS-N/ MIS-C usually follows the peak of covid in adults by 4 to 8 weeks. Currently, due to increasing incidence of covid in adults, doctors are expecting a spike in MIS–N/C too.

Dr Chandra added, "Children develop covid infections but it usually doesn't do any harm to them. Majority of the time they will be asymptomatic or have mild coughs, colds and fever and that usually settles within two to three days. Children who get covid acquire antibodies that shield them from contracting new infections in the future. In other words, they develop immunity to fight off infection."

Dr Vikram Vora, medical director, India subcontinent – International SOS, said, "Many parents are now expressing concern about the new Omicron sub-variants as it seems like a deja-vu situation. With each new sub-variant being more transmissible than the previous one, this concern is completely natural.

The encouraging news, however, is that newer sub-variants are not known to be any more severe than the older ones. The disease caused, especially in children, remains mild in nature and most infections are now treated on an outpatient basis (as opposed to high hospitalisations seen earlier).

Also, many children (and most adults) today have some level of immunity (antibodies developed as a result of prior infection or vaccination) that offers a fair level of protection. If not already vaccinated, it is a good idea to get children vaccinated as soon as they become eligible."

Vora suggested schools should revisit covid management plans to account for the rise in transmissibility and make provisions to allow potentially infected children to access schools from home during the required isolation period. Any school trips etc., especially international, should ideally be deferred but if such activities need to continue, a robust Medical Incident Management Protocol shall be adhered to.

Fillies hold cutting-edge in Betway Summer Derby

The countdown for the showdown at sundown has begun and most railbirds are busy working out the many permutations and combinations to hit the Jackpot at the Derby-day races on Super Sunday. The Betway Bangalore Summer Derby has attracted a star-studded field of 13 contestants, 10 top colts and three frontline fillies, vying for honours in the blue riband which offers a rich purse of Rs 1.18 crore to the winner. And most old hats in the game and the many knowledgeable punters are of the view that the mega event this summer wears an open look and more than half-dozen runners are in with a definite chance to wear the prestigious Derby sash.

Philosophy

Success

The winner of the Colts Championship Stakes, Mojito, runner-up Once You Go Black and the Kolkata hopeful Leonardo from Vijay Singh's yard top the list among the colts, while the ladies cheer brigade will be rooting for the two top fillies, Philosophy from the stables of leading pro Padmanabhan and Success under the care of Vijay Singh. Success in her last essay over the Derby trip (2000M) proved too good for her seven rivals and her connections, impressed most with her sublime performance are confident that the talented filly in the hands of Chotu Singh Jodha will pull the plug and fuse out her dozen rivals in the big showdown. Philosophy to be partnered again by top pro Sandesh after her fine effort in the Fillies Championship Stakes retains form and fitness and taking into account that the extended trip will suit her style, the Padmanabhan ward is set to test the best in her effort to land the Derby riches.

Mojito among the colts tops the leader board and the Mumbai pro M K Jadhav is satisfied with his progress and preparation for the big event. The bred in the purple star performer from the famed Usha Stud Farm is in good nick taking into account his brilliant final preparatory gallop and with Parmar guiding his fortunes, the Jadhav ward is looking to record a classic double.

The supporters of Once You Go Black from James McKeown's yard are positive that the top performer who recorded a hat-trick, winning his first three career starts before finishing second in the Colts will turn the tables on Mojito and gallop home to join the elite list of the Derby winners, while the Kolkata camp who fancy Success to reign supreme expect Leonardo, stablemate of Success to be involved at the finish.

Sporting owner Manoj Krishnappa who is hoping to lead in two winners, Evaldo and Scribbling Hopper on the D-day disclosed that picking a Derby winner is a tricky exercise considering the fact that most contestants are in with a good chance and it will boil down to the one who produces his or her best on that day over the mile-and-half classic journey. "It is very competitive and tricky. I fancy Philosophy and Cyrenius from Padmanabhan's yard and Last Wish is the dark horse," said Manoj, while admitting that he will be most pleased to lead in Evaldo in the BTC Anniversary Cup.

Swaroop Kumar, owner and promoter pointed out that the testing underfoot conditions will provide a big challenge and the horse which successfully negotiates the rain-hit track will emerge the champion. "The two fillies, Success and Philosophy have the best chance and it could well turn out to be ladies day out," said Swaroop.

So all said and done the stage is set and the thunder of the hooves will provide a lyrical ring on Super Sunday.

Smashing Blue is one safe bet

In what appears a very open Derby, the two fillies, Success from Kolkata-based trainer Vijay Singh's yard and Philosophy from the stables of leading pro Padmanabhan are likely to dominate the finish of the blue riband of the summer season, the Betway Bangalore Summer Derby at the Bangalore Turf Club on Sunday.

Among the 10 colts, Mumbai hopeful Mojito, Chennai raider Once You Go Black and Leonardo, another Vijay Singh ward hold the edge and are raring to go in what on cards promises to be an intense struggle for supremacy.

For the many first timers who will be looking to make a fast buck on D-day, the topweighted Smashing Blue from leading Hyderabad trainer R H Sequeira's yard, competing in the Mumbai Salver is recommended as a good bet in the competitive eight-event card.

All problems solved

Dear Coleen

I'm a 38-year-old woman and I've been with my husband for 10 years. I feel so sad because I used to love and fancy him so much, but now when I look at him, I sometimes feel a bit repulsed and I can't explain the feeling.
It's not about how he looks, it's something else. I'm panicking it means our relationship has run its course and this is the beginning of the end. I never thought I'd be in this situation. I don't want to hurt him, but I know I do sometimes because I'm rude and snappy.
I'd welcome your opinion.

COLEEN SAYS

It sounds as if he irritates you on a deep level. Sometimes you need to take a step back and think about what you want.

Imagine him not being in your life and how you'd feel.

I've done this when I've been in a relationship that's struggling – I've gone to bed and thought really hard about how I'd feel if I woke up the next day and my partner wasn't there.

If you think you'd be happier, then it's probably time to make the decision to leave.

But in long-term relationships you can have a blip where things get tricky for a while and you just need time apart.

It's a hard decision to make and I always think counselling is a good idea before making the move to call it quits.

But if he's repulsing you, it's not a great sign and you need to act.

Start by talking to him and asking him how he feels instead of snapping at him.

Flavours from the sea

These fish recipes are from different cuisines and a must for those craving some Vitamin Sea

GRILLED SALMON WITH ORANGE BUTTER SAUCE

Norwegian grilled salmon on the bed of seasonal vegetables with tangy sauce

INGREDIENTS

Salmon marination
- Salmon: 180g
- Lemon juice: 5ml
- Salt: 3g
- Pepper: 2g
- Garlic: 5g
- Dill leaves: 5g

Prep Time: 15 mins Cooking Time: 15 Serves 1

Sauce
- Fresh orange juice: 50ml
- Butter: 10g
- Salt: 5g
- Pepper: 3g
- Cream: 20ml
- Mix of sautéed veggies: for base

METHOD
- Make a marination batter by mixing Lemon juice, salt, and pepper, chopped garlic, and chopped dill leaves. Marinate salmon steak in it and keep it aside for 10mins.

Sauce
- Take a pan and add fresh orange juice, salt and pepper in it. Reduce it to half at slow flame. Add chilled butter cubes and finish it with fresh cream.

TANDOORI POMFRET

INGREDIENTS
- powdered turmeric: 5g tsp
- garam masala powder: 5 tsp
- hung curd: 100g cup
- mustard oil: 60ml tablespoon
- ginger paste: 5g tsp
- pomfret fish: 2 black
- red chilli: 30g powdered
- gram flour: 15g tablespoon
- salt: as required
- lemon juice: 1 lemon
- garlic paste: 5g tsp

METHOD
- For preparing this easy recipe, you need to begin with cleaning and trimming the tail, fins and scales of the fish. Once the fish is clean, you can move to the next step. Make incisions on the clean fishes. Keep them aside. Then take a bowl and add all the ingredients. Adjust the amount of besan and yoghurt to get a nice thick paste. Apply this marinade to the fish on both sides very well. Keep it for at least 30 minutes in the fridge. Take skewer and put it in pre heated tandoor. Cook until light brown. Cover it with aluminium foil and again put it in tandoor for 8-10 mins. Garnish with some lemons and crisp onions and serve with green chutney.

Prep Time: 15 mins Cooking Time: 15 Serves 2

SCALLOP SHUMAI

Chinese steamed dumpling stuffed with scallops' mixture

INGREDIENTS
- scallops: 300 g
- shumai pastry: 1 pack
- spring onion: 50g
- sea salt: 5g
- pepper powder: 2g tsp
- sesame oil: 10ml
- caviar: 10g

Prep Time: 30 mins Cooking Time: 15 Serves 4

METHOD
- Use a food processor to blend all of the ingredients. Put the filling by using a teaspoon into the sheets in the desired shape. Steam the shumai for around 15 minutes. Garnish it with caviar. Shumai can be eaten on its own or you can dip it in some soy sauce. It's now ready to serve.

KEBAB-E-KARAJAN

Saffron marinated lobster with lemon garlic butter sauce

INGREDIENTS
- Lobster Marination:
- Saffron: Few strands
- Lemon juice: 5ml
- Vegetable oil: 10ml
- Salt: 5g
- White pepper: 3g

Prep Time: 15 mins Cooking Time: 20 Serves 1

Sauce
- Chopped Lobster: 1 Medium size
- Onion: 50g
- Butter: 20g
- Celery: 20g
- Garlic: 10g
- Fresh cream: 30ml
- Saffron: Few strands

METHOD
- Cut lobster one by two and marinate it with salt white pepper, saffron, lemon juice and oil. Grill it on charcoal.

For sauce
- In a pan, add sauteed garlic, onion, celery and add chopped lobster and cook it well. At the end, add fresh cream, saffron, butter and seasonings. Plate up for a yummy meal.

The numbers in the grey squares refer to the sums of the digits that you must fill into the empty spaces directly below or to the right of the grey square containing the number. For instance, in the given example, the 3 boxes horizontally next to 15 must contain 3 digits that add up to 15, whereas for 9, it is the 2 boxes placed vertically under it that must add up to 9. No zeros are used here, only the digits 1 through 9.

Note: A digit cannot appear more than once in any particular digit combination. For instance, in the example, we cannot have the combination of 4+7+4 for 15.

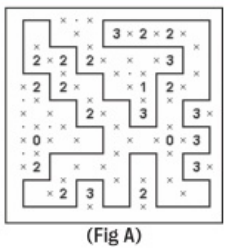
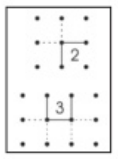
Rules

» Connect adjacent dots with vertical or horizontal lines, creating a single loop (Fig A). » Crossovers or branches are not allowed (As shown by dotted lines in Fig B). » Numbers in the puzzle indicate the number of lines that should surround it, while empty cells may be surrounded by any number of lines. » You can't draw lines around zeros. » Each puzzle has just one unique solution.



(Fig A)



(Fig B) Not Allowed

How to begin:

Example (Fig A) – Begin with the zero next to 3. Since no lines can be drawn around zero, mark crosses around it, as shown. Now there is a cross in one space around 3. So we know the three lines of 3 can only be drawn in the remaining three spaces. Next, these lines can only be extended in one direction each. Continue, using the same logic.

Hints: Keep eliminating possibilities by marking crosses in spaces between dots where a line isn't possible, i.e., if you have already completed required lines or where a line extension may create a branch or cause a dead-end (Fig B)

INTERVIEW | JANHVI KAPOOR, ACTOR

Not delusional at all

Actor Janhvi tells us how she handles fame, how she picks her roles and more...

All I want to do is good work. The privilege and the trolling in the social media and all of this secondary," shares Janhvi Kapoor when asked how she's dealing with the privilege she was gifted with and the fame she's basking in. Excerpts from an ETimes exclusive interview with the actress:

What were your biggest takeaways 'Good Luck Jerry'?
You know, honestly, it was such a long time ago. But I think I learned to take risks. And I learned to believe in myself a little more, I learned that I don't necessarily need to be so hard on myself to get the results that I think I want. And I think I just learned that there isn't any set pattern in getting what you want to get.

Your last outings have seen you delivering women centric roles. Has this been a conscious decision?
Not really, I think I'm just choosing scripts on the basis of what will challenge me as an actor, what excites me as an actor, and I think all these roles were big learning opportunities for me.

What's your approach to building your career and enhancing your stardom?
I don't know about the stardom, but just to be true to your craft, to grow, to take up challenges and to push yourself as an artist. That has and will be my approach.

How do you handle fame?
A lot of the attention and recognition has come my way is, first and foremost, because of who my parents are. I think there's a lot of clarity and identifying that and I'm not delusional, and thinking that I've earned all of it, or I deserve any of it even. But now I have it. And I think what I want to do with it is good work. Because I love my job. And so the privilege and the trolling on social media and all of this is secondary. My main priority, and focus is to hone my craft and give my work my all.

Do you consciously choose deglam roles?
I think my personality is different. Janhvi likes to dress up and wear cute clothes and click pictures. But I can do that on my social media. I can do that in my personal life. When I'm playing a character I want to be as true to the character as possible. And it just so happens that I'm gravitating towards characters that come from these backgrounds and are living these lives.

What has your approach been towards negativity on social media?
I think, to not take it seriously. Just to have a little fun with it. There's so much you can do that is so interactive and so fun. And so creatively engaging, even like making reels.

Yesterday, once more

Actor Jacqueline Fernandez has ushered in a wave of nostalgia among the 90s youth with her new beverage commercial.

Food and beverage brand Pepsi has recreated its iconic advertisement from 1992 that featured supermodel Cindy Crawford. The new ad stars Jacqueline and she has surely made many nostalgic.

In the new advertisement, Jacqueline is seen arriving in style on a bike at a secluded petrol pump. In both the commercials, Jacqueline and Cindy are seen stopping by a petrol pump for a quick drink. They are seen sporting denim shorts and a white tank top.

As soon as Jacqueline shared the commercial on her social media handle, netizens chimed into the comment section and expressed their views on the recreation.

"Cindy Crawford throwback. Extremely nostalgic," a social media user commented.

"Oh My God! Ditto," another one wrote.

Many netizens called Jacqueline "Jacqueline Cindy Crawford."

Reportedly, the original Pepsi commercial, which was filmed in 1992, made huge waves when it premiered at the Super Bowl in the US.

All puns intended, if you catch the drift

Petromax will come as a pleasure for front benchers, with its multiple double entendres, and innuendos — even as it attempts to convey a message about senior citizens, irresponsible children and hapless litigants. Director Vijaya Prasad has once again proved that he can entertain mass audiences, especially the Gandhi Class audiences aka front-benchers.

On to the story -- Four orphans Oodabatti Shivappa (Sathish Ninasam), Agarbatti Madappa (Arun Kumar), Krishnamurthy (Nagabhushan), and Kavitha Krishnamurthy (Karunya Ram) are together in a hostel. The warden of the hostel asks them to leave and find their feet. While Shivappa works as a food delivery man, Madappa works as an electrician. Krishnamurthy is an assistant to an advocate while Kavitha works at a women's spa. They try to rent a house, but are unable to crack a deal. In a turn of events, they meet Meenakshi (Haripriya), a real estate agent, who succeeds in finding a suitable house for them. Over to Meenakshi and Shivappa -- their story is what forms the heart of this plot.

One trait of the movie is that a majority of its characters are verbose. The other is that there seems to be a competition among all the actors on who will deliver the raunchiest dialogue of them all. We have to give the honours (or dishonour) to Karunya who has taken a risk in mouthing such dialogues that could land her in an unwanted stereotype.

It takes the entry of Sudha (Vijayalakshmi Singh) to give some relief from barrage of innuendos. Singh, as a mother abandoned by her only son, has done a good job. One cracking scene which she pulls off with much finesse is where she performs the last rites on her son's photos -- this can make you tear up.

Unfortunately, there is no scope for the film's glamorous female leads to run around trees with their lovers as the screenplay is as straight-jacket as a panel discussion on a TV channel. Sudha Belawadi, as the advocate, who arm-twists her assistant to accompany her to a theatre to watch a late night show of the movie Asai Puraisu, fails to convince.

All in all, Petromax is worth a watch only if you have a penchant for dialogues that can be risqué and funny and if you want to catch the bold and the beautiful work by Haripriya and Karunya Ram.
